

Dwayne Johnson's Game On For The New Jumanji:

The story finds four teens (Alex Wolff's Spencer, Madison Iseman's Bethany, Ser'Darius Blain's Anthony "Fridge" Johnson and Morgan Turner's Martha) in trouble at school for various minor infractions. Assigned to clear out a junk-strewn basement, they stumble upon a video game version of Jumanji and give it a go, only to find themselves transported into the jungle environs as their avatars.

Dwayne Johnson ramps up his usual blend of action cockiness and comic vulnerability to play Dr. Smolder Bravestone, with Karen Gillan as typical video game female avatar Ruby Roundhouse, Kevin Hart as Moose Finbar and Jack Black (as Bethany's confused stand-in, Professor Shelly Oberon). Together, they'll have to learn to survive...

Showing a little bit of the connection to the original Jumanji adaptation and how the video game mechanics work, the new trailer continues the theme of adventure meets comedy.

Directed by Jake Kasdan, the movie will be out on 20 December.

It's a movie that is entirely dependent on these four central performances, a movie that is good for a family to go to together, it's something that kids and their parents will have a really good time with. That is something that can always be used at Christmas.

Ultimate playboy laid to rest

Despite his lavish lifestyle, Hugh Hefner's friends and family say his funeral over the weekend was a discreet affair. Only Hefner's four children, wife Crystal Harris and some of the mansion's long-serving staff members were there to pay tribute to the late icon, TMZ reports.

Hugh Hefner, the indelible face and spirit of Playboy magazine, will be laid to rest next to America's first playmate Marilyn Monroe following his death on Wednesday. Hefner reserved the plot at Westwood Memorial Park in Los Angeles next to the movie star icon decades after her death in 1962, purchasing it for $75,000 in 1992. Hefner died on Tuesday at the age of 91 from natural causes, according to a statement released by Playboy Enterprises.

Ranbir Kapoor's 35th birthday celebrations

Bollywood actor Ranbir Kapoor rang in his 35th birthday with close friends and Bollywood stars including Shah Rukh Khan, Aamir Khan and his wife, Kiran Rao, Alia Bhatt, Sidharth Malhotra, Arjun Kapoor, filmmaker Karan Johar, Aditya Roy Kapur, Rajkumar Hirani, Imtiaz Ali, Anurag Basu, Imran Khan and his wife Avantika Malik, among others. Ranbir, who is considered one of the perfect heirs to Raj Kapoor's legacy in Indian cinema, turned 35 last Thursday. He started his career with Sanjay Leela Bhansali's Saawariya, and has come a long way. He has experimented a lot with his films and roles. While films like Barfi clicked with the audiences and critics alike, movies like Bombay Velvet, Be-sharam and Jagga Jasoos proved to be disasters.

Ranbir had invited the stars to his Pali Hill residence late Wednesday and the guests were snapped at the entry. Varun Dhawan, Arjun Kapoor, Aditya Roy Kapur, Karan Johar and Imtiaz Ali were also present for the bash. Despite dad Rishi Kapoor's angry rants against the director, Anurag Basu was more than happy to join the party in Mumbai. Reportedly, Basu even offered birthday cake to media persons. The actor, who is currently working with Rajkumar Hirani on his Sanjay Dutt biopic, was also spotted around his house, early on Thursday morning.

Nasty C offers R100k reward to find 'priceless' laptop

Nasty C has pleaded with fans and has offered a R100 000 reward to anyone who can help him find a laptop, which was stolen by thieves during a house robbery at his home in Johannesburg last week.

The rapper took to social media on Wednesday evening to make the request, explaining that the laptop contained music he was working on for over a year.

Nasty C's record label, Mabala Noise told TshisaLIVE that they decided to issue a public plea because the laptop was very important to the rapper.

"We have had a lot of people contact us about the laptop but sadly most of these were just messages containing information or links to people's demos. There have not been any solid leads yet but we are hopeful," Sikhulile added.

Nasty C and four others were tied up and held at gunpoint at the rapper's home in Roodekraans, Johannesburg, last Wednesday.
